Sensible Suggestions Are Offered by President Fieheger.

The views expressed by Mr. F. E. Fieheger, President of the City Council, in reference to the government of Akron, has attracted general attention.

At the request of a large number of the readers the Democrat herewith reproduces the article as it appeared in the Sunday Star.

I have been giving considerable attention to the various forms proposed for our city government, and believe that none of the forms proposed strike at the bottom of the evil. Councilmen are constantly being accused of all manner of wrongs, and not infrequently of accepting bribes, but during the time I have been in that body I can say that I do not know of a single wrong act intentionally committed by one of the members. This tendency to falsely accuse councilmen and the necessity of serving without any form of recompense or pay, makes it impossible to get the class of men needed. Every inducement is against a really good man who might go into the body. By exempting citizens from jury duty or three years of court while his private affairs suffer. The exemption from taxes would let the poorer man off without any tax whatever, while the more successful citizen would be slightly more benefited, but pay part of the public general expense. This would serve as a salary, but the time would be the same on this account for the city of Akron, exceed $1000. All the members would not have property enough to pay that amount of taxes in a year.

The council, as constituted by the re-districting of the city, is too large and unwieldy for the rapid and successful transaction of business. A body of 16 men will not achieve as good results or accomplish as much as one of half that size. A body composed of one representative from each ward is plenty large enough. Members from four wards could be elected one year and from the other four the next, those selected serving two years, at present.

Have a Board of Approval of four representative citizens who shall be elected each year, whose remuneration shall be $5 for each session, there not to be over 20 sessions in a year. This body would act in an advisory capacity, and have a veto power in all matters pertaining to franchises involving over $25,000. The mayor would be an ex officio member of this body and the chance of a deadlock be avoided.

Have a board of commissioners of three members, who shall serve for a term of three years, one to be elected each year and receive a salary of $1,500 a year. They should be the servants of the city and have charge of all improvements and expenditures of money. They would appoint the heads of all city departments, as fire and police chief, city clerk, street commissioner and engineer, but all appointments would be subject to the Board of Control. Their acts would be closely scrutinized by this board and if a commissioner is found guilty of extravagant spending of money or any misconduct in office his resignation could be demanded by the Board of Control without the necessity of preferring formal charges and the delays incident to their trial.

All legislation should be passed by the council without any interference from the commissioners, that body attending entirely to the executive business of the city.

The heads of the various departments should be supreme in their sphere and free from orders or dictation by the commissioners or anybody else. They should be responsible for the work under them and free to discharge men for failure or other duty and make all appointments. The latter would be subject to approval by the Board of Control, but failing in this the nominee could only be rejected. No substitute could be named unless first suggested by the head of the department.

The mayor would be the real head of the city government, and should receive a salary of $2,500 a year. He should be elected for three years and be entirely free from original business, a police judge being provided for that. All acts of the commissioners relating to public improvements would be subject to his veto when they did not come within the scope of the Board of Control, and all expenditures of money over $500 should meet his approval before being binding on the city.

This plan in actual operation would be found much more simple than it may appear to the average reader. Only the Board of Control and police judge would be added to the present officers. One would relieve the mayor of duties that do not belong to the office and give him time to attend to the real work of the city and be responsible for it. The other would in no sense be a legislative body. There would be no chance for deadlocks on necessary legislation, as we have had between the council and commissioners. Their whole duty would be to confirm or reject all appointments to office, expenditures of money over a certain limit, and the granting of all franchises. They would only have a veto power, but as the term of office would be only one year, the best and most solid business men in the city would consent to serve. A body of this kind would have saved the city considerable money last year when the Market street paving contracts were let. The contracts were not let to the lowest bidder and the only redress of the property owners was to sue the city. This was expensive and caused a long and bothersome delay. Where the Board of Control has no veto power the mayor acts as a check on the commissioners and council. On expenditures amounting to less than $500 the commissioners have authority to act at present. Under the present system no watch is kept of these small sums, and if the taxpayers are wronged there is no chance for redress. The plan proposed would only make it necessary to convince this board that one or more commissioners had been guilty of carelessness or failure to attend to duty and end their official career. The Board of control would appoint to fill the vacancy until the first election when candidates for the balance of the term would be balloted for.

When franchises come up for action there is always a cry that this councilman or that has been bought, and while I have never seen it in Akron it has been done in other places and may happen here before we know it. The recent investigation of Cleveland proves that. One thing that makes it easy for a large corporation to get its valuable grants for the use of streets and property free is the natural desire to attain money. It is taught a child from the beginning. The man of means is no longer content with being a laborer, but his honor is at stake and that honor means more dollars than does that of the poor man. For this reason the Board of Control would probably be more difficult to influence than a council. The members would be men whose business they would not allow them to do the least act that would look suspicious. In addition to this if a corporation could buy the Board of Control it would still have to buy the council. While the council would have less money they would be a better class of men than at present, and consequently more exclusive.

The matter of franchises does not receive the consideration by the people that it should. As the city grows they are rapidly increasing in value until some of these free grants are worth fortunes. This was illustrated last week when the Northern Ohio Traction Co. bought the Rapid Transit lines. Mr. Walsh got the franchise for the original road as an attorney. After he had it the parties to build the line could not raise the money. The grants along the roads and in the streets were too valuable to forfeit and Mr. Walsh went into the street railroad business to hold the franchises. Of the purchase price paid for the road a large part of it was for the rights given the Rapid Transit by the public's servants. These matter do not come up every day, but when they do we should be prepared for them. One man took a franchise for $100,000 to the city during the life of the franchise in question. The public grants that have already been made will not run forever, and the time for their renewal will come before we know it. We do not want to have another Central Union Telephone experience when that time comes, but unless we prepare for it it is certain to follow.

The foundation of Akron in a business sense has been laid during the last 10 years and during that time it has changed in appearance from a country village to a healthy, growing city. In 1890 the entire length of Main street was a sea of mud and part of it was West Market, North Howard, East Exchange and many of the other of our city streets were washed out country roads after every rain storm. Today we have about 24 miles of pavements in the city, all of it laid during the time and during the coming summer this will be increased to 30 miles. Then only a few sections had local sewers. Now trunk sewers extend through every section of the city and almost every street has connections. Many modern bridges have replaced the old wooden structures in use. The old fire department buildings have been replaced and in a few weeks only two of the old buildings will be in use. These betterments have been made in every way that lay in the power of the council and commissioners. It is only the matter of public buildings an improvements requiring a vote of the people that we are yet on a village plan and behind the needs of city.

It is impossible to lay the foundations of a city without paying for them. Our present levy of taxation which seems a burden to many, can hardly be expected to pay the city share of these many improvements. There is much more to commend than to condemn in the results secured by our administrative councils, but many improvements can be made that would secure better results. The changed conditions make a better form of government necessary.

The news of burglaries perpetrated in all sections of our country, naturally causes watchfulness and fear on the part of nearly every one. Billy —, a soldier citizen, who had perused his newspaper before going to bed, was awakened during the night by hearing a noise at one of the windows. He was wide awake in an instant, with Ever have a "low down" pain in the back? In the "small" right over the hips? That's the home of backache. It's caused by sick kidneys. That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Akron people endorse this—read a case of it: Mrs. M. E. Berry of 210 Coburn st., says: "I suffered from my head and from my back and it occurred to me that the trouble was caused by inactivity of the kidneys. There was pain in my back and in the back and top of my head, a dull, grinding aching across the joints and sharp twinges when rising from a chair. My husband suggested trying Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured them from Lamparter & Co.'s drug store. On taking them they gave immediate relief. The pains and lameness in my back were banished; my head felt much better, and I was freed from languor and depression."

every nerve strained to its utmost tension. A head appeared at the window from whence the noise proceeded. Stealthily he crawled from his bed, procured a revolver and patiently waited for a reappearance of the supposed burglars' physiognomy. At length it appeared again. He fired and all became as silent as the grave. Long did he remain in fear and dread until he worked himself up to a point of bravery sufficient to investigate the result of that shot. A few short steps with the aid of a lantern revealed to him a neighbor's pet cow as dead as a last year's almanac.

Several corn cribs have been visited during the night by those who had no right to visit there at any time, and some kind neighborly fellow can get a good glove by calling upon Sam Rudy, proving property, and by bringing his mate. Sam had a lot of unhusked corn still lingering among the stalks in his barn. He noticed one morning that some enterprising fellow had been so kind as to husk out a lot of corn and forget to leave it there. He thereupon hung a rate trap among the corn stalks and when he went to see whether or not it had succeeded in springing itself found a man's glove, the ends of the fingers being firmly held by the watchful trap. More surprises await these fellows should they go back. He has sent to Chicago for a bear trap and should he succeed in catching a bear, a constable will be called upon to release it. Geo. Witsman and other neighbors will also have the use of the trap and it will be rather dangerous for night-prowlers in that vicinity, as it will be a hard matter to tell where the confounded thing might be located.
